Your privacy is our concern
When you apply to Armed Forces Insurance for any type of policy, you disclose information about yourself to us. The collection, use and disclosure of such information are regulated by law. Armed Forces Insurance maintains physical, electronic, and procedural safeguards that comply with state and federal regulations to guard your personal information. We also limit employee access to personally identifiable information to those with a business reason for knowing such information. Armed Forces Insurance also instructs our employees so that they will understand the importance of the confidentiality of personal information, and takes appropriate measures to enforce employee privacy responsibilities.

What kind of information do we collect about you and from whom?
Armed Forces Insurance obtains most of our information directly from you. The application you complete, as well as any additional information you provide, generally gives us most of the information we need. Sometimes we may contact you by phone, mail, or email to obtain additional information. We may use information gathered during other transactions with us or with our affiliates.

Depending on the nature of your insurance transaction, we may need additional information about you or other individuals proposed for coverage, such as your social security number. For auto insurance, we may need information from your motor vehicle records. For property coverage, we may send someone to inspect your property and verify information about its value and condition. A photo of your property might be taken. We may review insurance claims information and other loss information reports, and we may also obtain medical or financial information to adjust some claims. We may obtain the information we need from third parties, such as other insurance companies, government agencies, information clearing houses, courts and other public records. We may receive consumer credit information from a consumer reporting agency. Under the FCRA and state laws and the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA), we may order an investigative consumer report. The agency that prepares a consumer report for us may retain that report and disclose it to other persons as permitted by law. Upon request, we will tell you how to get a copy of the report.

You have the right to request in writing access to recorded personal information about you that is reasonably described. We will respond to your request within 30 business days from the date your request is received. If we request additional information from you, we may extend this response period. We will notify you in writing of any such extension and the reasons for the extension.

What do we do with the information collected about you?
Information that has been collected about you may be retained in our records. We review it in evaluating your request for insurance coverage and in determining your rates. We will also refer to and use information in our policy records for purposes related to issuing and servicing insurance policies and settling claims. We may use information in our files for insurance marketing purposes or to help you with your overall insurance program.

If coverage is declined or the charge for coverage is increased because of information contained in a consumer report we obtained, we will tell you as required by state law and the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act. We will also give you the name and address of the consumer reporting agency making the report.

We may retain information about our former customers and will disclose that information to affiliates and non-affiliates only as described in this notice.
